

RollNo	MOCK EXAM-II FOR CSS-2026 ENGLISH (PRECIS & COMPOSITION)	Name
TIME ALLOWED: THREE HOURS	(PART-I MCQS): 30 MINUTES (PART-II): 2 HOURS & 30 MINUTES	MAXIMUM MARKS : 20 MAXIMUM MARKS : 80
NOTE: (i) Attempt PART-I (MCQS) first on the same Question Paper which shall be taken back after 30 minutes. (ii) Overwriting/cutting of the options/answers will not be given credit.

PART-I (MCQS) COMPULSORY

- Q.1 (a) Encircle the word most similar in meaning to the capitalized word. (10)
- | | | |
|-----------------------|--------------------------|------------------------|
| 1. PROSAIC | (a) Extraordinary | (b) Inexpensive |
| | (c) Commonplace | (d) Painting |
| 2. GROTESQUE | (a) Grandeur | (b) Monument |
| | (c) Gorgeous | (d) Gnarled |
| 3. IMBECILE | (a) Imprudent | (b) Doltish |
| | (c) Unfortunate | (d) Childless |
| 4. HEX | (a) Hoax | (b) Wildfire |
| | (c) Malediction | (d) Accident |
| 5. QUALM | (a) Compunction | (b) Concussion |
| | (c) Torpidity | (d) Oddity |
| 6. CULPABLE | (a) Admirable | (b) Inquisitive |
| | (c) Pretentious | (d) Blameworthy |
| 7. CHIMERA | (a) Flamboyance | (b) Elf |
| | (c) Anecdote | (d) Illusion |
| 8. APPELLATION | (a) Sprit | (b) Designation |
| | (c) Euphemism | (d) Precision |
| 9. COMMODIOUS | (a) Spacious | (b) Cramped |
| | (c) Generous | (d) Admirable |
| 10. TEMERITY | (a) Terseness | (b) Fearfulness |
| | (c) Shyness | (d) Audacity |

ENGLISH (PRÉCIS & COMPOSITION)

(b) Encircle the word most opposite in meaning to the capitalized word. (10)

11. FORFEIT

(a) Seize

(b) Retrieve

(c) Reprieve

(d) Forego
12. ESPOUSE

(a) Resist

(b) Reassure

(c) Propose

(d) Glorify
13. VIRTUOSO

(a) Pious

(b) Actually

(c) Maestro

(d) Novice
14. RECALCITRANT

(a) Headstrong

(b) Docile

(c) Reluctant

(d) Petulant
15. AVID

(a) Lukewarm

(b) Harpy

(c) Generous

(d) Boisterous
16. SPRY

(a) Virile

(b) Mistrustful

(c) Undernourished

(d) Lacklustre
17. INCENSED

(a) Aromatic

(b) Predisposed

(c) Livid

(d) Unruffled
18. ILL-DISPOSED

(a) Genial

(b) Sickening

(c) Wicked

(d) Misconstrued
19. OVERBEARING

(a) Supercilious

(b) Unassuming

(c) Ambitious

(d) Shrewd
20. INSIPID

(a) Invalid

(b) Pleasing

(c) Pessimist

(d) Senseless

RollNo	MOCK EXAM-II FOR CSS-2026 ENGLISH (PRECIS & COMPOSITION)	Name
TIME ALLOWED: THREE HOURS PART-I (MCQS): MAXIMUM 30 MINUTES	PART-I(MCQS): PART-II	MAXIMUM MARKS = 20 MAXIMUM MARKS = 80
NOTE: (i) Part-II isto be attemptedon the separate Answer Book . (ii) Attempt ALL questionsfrom PART-II . (iii) Alltheparts(ifany)ofeachQuestionmustbeattemptedatoneplace instead of at different places. (iv) CandidatemustwriteQ.No.intheAnswerBookinaccordancewith Q.No. in the Q. Paper. (v) NoPage/Spacebeleftblankbetweentheanswers.Alltheblankpages of Answer Book must be crossed. (vi) Extraattemptofanyquestionoranypartoftheattemptedquestion will not be considered.

PART-II

Q2) Make a précis of the following passage and suggest a suitable title.

The significant psychological facts about the crowd are as follows. The tone of crowd emotion is essentially orgiastic and dionysiac. In virtue of his membership of the crowd, the individual is released from the limitations of his personality, made free of the sub-personal, sub-human world of unrestrained feeling and uncriticized belief. To be a member of a crowd is an experience closely akin to alcoholic intoxication. Most human beings feel a craving to escape from the cramping limitations of their ego, to take periodical holidays from their all too familiar, all too squalid little selves. As they do not know how to travel upwards from personality into a region of super-personality and as they are unwilling, even if they do know, to fulfill the ethical, psychological and physiological conditions of self-transcendence, they turn naturally to the descending road, the road that leads down from personality to the darkness of sub-human emotionalism and panic animalism. Hence the persistent craving for narcotics and stimulants, hence the never-failing attraction of the crowd. The success of the dictators is due in large measure to their extremely skillful exploitation of the universal human need for escape from the limitations of personality. Perceiving that people wished to take holidays from themselves in sub-human emotionality, they have systematically provided their subjects with the occasions for doing so. The Communists denounce religion as the opium of the people; but all they have done is to replace this old drug by a new one of similar composition. For the crowd round the relic of the saint they have substituted the crowd at the political meeting; for religious processions, military reviews and May Day parades. It is the same with Fascist dictators. In all the totalitarian states the masses are persuaded, and, even compelled, to take periodical holidays from themselves in the sub- human world of crowd emotion.

It is significant that while they encourage and actually command the descent into sub-humanity, the dictators do all they can to prevent men from taking the upward road from personal limitation, the road that leads toward non-attachment to the "things of this world" and attachment to that which is super-personal. The higher manifestations of religion are far more suspect to the tyrants than the lower — and with reason. For the man who escapes from egotism into super-personality has transcended his old idolatrous loyalty, not only to himself, but also to the local divinities — nation, party, class, deified boss. Self-transcendence, escape from the prison of the ego into union with what is above personality, is generally accomplished in solitude. That is why the tyrants like to herd their subjects into those vast crowds, in which the individual is reduced to a state of intoxicated sub-humanity.

Q.3 Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given at the end. (20)

What a description of this basic tripartite structure shows is that poetry is emotional in nature and theatrical in operation, a skilled re-creation of emotion in other people, and that, conversely, a bad poem is one that never succeeds in doing this. All modes of critical derogation are no more than different ways of saying this, whatever literary, philosophical or moral terminology they employ, and it would not be necessary to point out anything so obvious if present-day poetry did not suggest that it had been forgotten. We seem to be producing a new kind of bad poetry, not the old kind that tries to move the reader and fails, but one that does not even try. Repeatedly the modern poet is confronted with pieces that cannot be understood without reference beyond their own limits or whose contented insipidity argues that their authors are merely reminding themselves of what they know already, rather than re-creating it for a third party. The reader, in fact, seems no longer present in the poet's mind as he used to be, as someone who must understand and enjoy the finished product if it is to be a success at all; the assumption now is that no one will read it, and wouldn't understand or enjoy it if they did. Why should this be so? It is not sufficient to say that poetry has lost its audience, and so need no longer consider it; lots of people still read and even buy poetry. More accurately, poetry has lost its old audience, and gained a new one. This has been caused by the consequences of a cunning merger between poet, literary critic and academic critic (three classes now notoriously indistinguishable); it is hardly an exaggeration to say that the poet has gained the happy position wherein he can praise his own poetry in the press and explain it in the class-room, and the reader has been bullied into giving up the consumer's power to say "I don't like this, bring me something different." Let him now so much as breathe a word about not liking a poem, and he is in the dock before he would know. And the charge is a grave one: flabby sensibility, insufficient or inadequate critical tools, and inability to meet new verbal and emotional situations. Verdict: guilty, plus a few riders on the prisoner's mental upbringing, addiction to mass amusements, and enfeebled responses.

Questions:

- Q.1 What is the difference between old kind of bad poetry and new kind of bad poetry? (05)
Q.2 What, according to the writer, is the problem with the modern-day poet? (05)
Q.3 What is the consequence of merger between poet, literary critic and academic critic? (05)
Q.4 What is writer's verdict against the modern poet? (05)

(a) Correct any FIVE of the following sentences.

Q.4 (05)

1. Playing games is better than to read books.
2. He thinks his handwriting is better than his friend.
3. I shall join either of the four universities.
4. He hoped as soon as possible to go abroad for studies.
5. The thing that prevented him from going abroad were his wife and children.
6. I had scarcely walked ten steps from my house then it started raining.
7. I cannot dislike him, despite of his faults.
8. Barely he had reached the airport as the aero plane took off on time.

(b) Punctuate the following text, where necessary. (05)

there is no emperor like akbar so magnificently liberal in outlook so wonderfully far sighted round his throne were gathered a luminous band of scholars wits and statesmen between hindus and muslims he made no distinction he endeavored to build an empire founded on principles of tolerance justice and goodwill

Q.5 (a) Change the narration of the following conversation. (05)

- Patient: Please tell the doctor that I am waiting for him.
 Receptionist: That is not possible right now Sir. He is very busy and will be free after an hour.
 Patient: So I must wait for him. But I wonder what I should do in the meantime?
 Receptionist: You can stay in the waiting room, sir, and read the newspapers.
 Patient: Alright. But please let me know as soon as the doctor is free.
 Receptionist: (After an hour) Sir, the doctor is free now and can see you.
 Patient: Good morning doctor, I have not been feeling fit for some time. Will you please examine me?
 Doctor: Yes I will. Take off your coat and I shall examine your heart and lungs.
 Patient: All right Sir.
 Doctor: Your lungs are quite sound, but your heart is weak. Do you smoke?
 Patient: Yes Sir, a lot but I am thinking to quit.

(b) Rewrite the following sentences (ONLY FIVE) after filling in the blanks with suitable prepositions. (05)

1. You have to atone _____ your sins.
2. The king glorified _____ building castles.
3. I do not concur _____ you in this matter.
4. Do not fall prey _____ temptations of the world.
5. Animals were sitting _____ shade of tree.
6. I am cognizant _____ the situation.
7. He manipulates every situation _____ his advantage.
8. The book is leaning _____ the table.

Q.6 (a) Use only FIVE of the following pairs of words in sentences illustrating their meanings. (05)

- | | |
|---------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1. Mendicity, Mendacity | 2. Considerable, Considerate |
| 3. Voracity, Veracity | 4. Sensual, Sensuous |
| 5. Subtler, Sutler | 6. Eminent, Imminent |
| 7. Exhaustive, Exhausting | 8. Corporal, Corporeal |

(b) Use only FIVE of the following expressions in sentences bringing out their meanings. (05)

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. Askeleton in the cupboard | 2. Upset the applectart |
| 3. Look a gift horse in the mouth | 4. Come clean |
| 5. Cupboard love | 6. A slap on the wrist |
| 7. Barking up the wrong tree | 8. Out of spirits |
